Thursday

June 16th

Weather still dry only more gray

Karena up early, went to work at 9am (GSA)

Jesper and Åse went north looking for old books

Tea room in a backlane, chai

Glasgow School of Art to see more of the degree show

MFA show at the Glue Factory

Passed Chinese market

Walked to St. Vincent Crescent along the river

Shopping and preparing dinner

Prepared a danish treat (biksemd) made from leftovers: one third cooked potatoes, one third chopped onions and one third cold meat of different kinds

— even sausages and ham can be used. Cut everything in approx 1 × 1cm bites.

Fry everything together in a big pan. Start frying the onions in a bit of butter or oil, then add potatoes and meat. Fry until onions are very soft and potatoes a bit brown. Season with salt and pepper. Serve with rye bread, fried eggs, worcestershire sauce, HP sauce, relish or chutney.

Karena back

Looked at things for the exhibition — opening Saturday at 5 pm

Jesper: jokes on art

Karena: collection of bells from her father

Åse: images of her bookbinding tools — is Kompendium 4 as well

Pist Protta issues

Still liquorice pipes [lakridspiber] left

Rain expected on Friday, when J-Å attend Transmissions trip to The Cobbler

Good sleep

Friday

June 17th

Rain

Karena up early, went to work at 9 am at GSA

J+Å put on rain clothes, warm clothes and — not too — waterproof shoes

Transmission at 10 am, met with Jim Colquhoun

Bus left at 11, heavy rain. Waited 20 minutes for passenger who did not show up.

Bus stopped at highway, discussions about cancelling the trip due to bad weather and not functioning bus. Then bus drove on, fine.

Wet country, rhododendrons in the forest along Loch Lomond.

Drove to Succoth (?) and walked uphill to the stream, everyone was soaked and

The Cobbler (Beinn Artair) hidden in the mist. Walked down again and met bus.

The Drovers Inn, heavy smell of firewood, waiters in kilt —both men and women

In bus everything is damp, windows misty.

Back in St. Vincent Crescent at 5-6 pm

Tea and bread

Karena decided on recipe for Saturdays soup and started making bread

Went to buy chickpeas to soak in water overnight

Worked a bit on the exhibition

Very tired

Saturday

June 18th:

Porridge for breakfast — bread for me — Karena too busy to eat
K&Å went to asian store, bought harissa, coriander, parsley, water melon, lemons, garlic — and beer on the way home

Heavy rain from noon

Soup of the day: Leblebi — chickpea soup— see recipe back in this booklet
Preparing soup, bread and exhibition

Which table for the bells? Tried round table but decided on the rectangular table same size as table for Pist Protta issues. Gave balance to the room.

Everything ready at 5 pm

Visitors arrived. Small confusion about when to do talk on PP. Did it anyway.
Peter Dowling, Jim Colquhoun, [...], Leonora Hennessy, David Bellingham and Kaspar, Helen Shaddock, Douglas Laing, Graham Ramsay, Clara Ursitti, John Calcutt, Owen Piper, Peigi Piper, Colin MacFarlane, Mark Beever, Nathalie de Brier, Eddie Stewart...

Karena did a performance and rang all the bells one by one

Very good soup and magnificent bread. Good company

Visitors left for another opening

The three of us stayed and did the dishes

Sunday

Home 22.30 DK-time

Carrot Cake Recipe (Graham Ramsay's recipe)

250ml corn oil	Mix in soured cream and vanilla essence
175g sugar — I used muscavado last time (be careful this is not lumpy — K)	Put the mix into two round tins (approx. 22cm diameter) and bake 180°C for about 30-45 minutes.
175g plain flour
3 eggs
1 and half teaspoons baking powder	(From a mix of sources — K) Carrot Cake
1 and half teaspoons bicarbonate soda	Topping — approximately 1 and half teaspoons ground cinnamon
half teaspoon ground ginger	250g Mascarpone
pinch of nutmeg	125g cream cheese
1 or 2 teaspoons vanilla essence (optional — K)	a bit of sugar
2 tablespoons soured cream — maybe optional but I've always put it in (I think this is an important ingredient — K)	lemon rind
3/4 teaspoon salt	lime juice
two large carrots coarsely grated	a tiny bit of cinnamon
half cup, or more, of chopped walnuts	...taste
half cup, or more, of sultanas	...top
	Enjoy!

Beat corn oil and sugar together, then add the eggs one at a time and mix in very well.

Add all the dry ingredients — flour, spices etc — sift them in if possible to avoid lumps.

Then beat well.

Then add carrots, walnuts and sultanas and fold them in

Leblebi (Camilla Plum's recipe)

500g chickpeas
1 halved garlic bulb
1 bay leaf
1 chili
2 tablespoons salt

Chickpeas soak in water overnight.
Cook with garlic, bay leaf, chili and salt in plenty of water for 1-1,5 hour.

Ad squeeze of lemon.

Serve with:

Harissa
Roasted cumin
Chopped parsley
Chopped coriander
Olive oil
(Kalamata) olives

Homemade bread
